

Watch the video ‘Every key individual in medicine and public health’ on YouTube, created by ‘Lessons in History’ 	 Think of a person who connects to our topic. This could be a specific person such as Edward Jenner or a general type such as a doctor during the Great plague. Create an imaginary interview with them in which you are the interviewer.	Choose three concepts or keywords connected to our topic and translate these into images, symbols or a diagram.
Visit - https://www.historyextra.com/ and search for an article to read about your current topic (or favourite topic!)	<h2 style="text-align: center;">How have we overcome health challenges?</h2> <h3 style="text-align: center;">Homework Menu</h3>	Explain at least two developments in medicine to a friend or family member. Ask them if they have any questions - if you can answer, great! If not, find out the answers!
Write a short speech persuading people why we should look at how people overcame medical crises 	Create a storyboard, flowchart or timeline to show how medicine progressed in the time you have looked at. Start with the earliest event we studied, the Black Death. What else happened after? 	 Create your own Multiple choice quiz on this week’s topic! This could be either on paper, a form, or even a kahoot. Share it with your teacher!
